Dedication

To those leaders of Indiana who have furnished us with an enviable record

To those leaders of Indiana who are today upholding our past

To those men and women, now students, who will be the leaders of the future

To those teachers of ours who have given inspiration to the leaders of Indiana but who have gone on without the acclaim of the world

Benjamin Harrison

STATESMAN

The twenty-eighth President of the United States was Benjamin Harrison of Indiana. After being a member of the class of 1852 at Miami University, he came to Indianapolis and engaged in the practice of law. In his chosen profession he made a great reputation for himself, having been retained in many famous cases.

Mr. Harrison held many public offices in Indiana, was elected to the Senate in 1880, and to the Presidency in the memorable campaign of 1888. Although famous as an orator, a statesman, and a lawyer, he was not fully appreciated during his lifetime.

Board of Trustees

The Board of Trustees of Indiana University has been working with several problems during this school year. The first of these has been the planning and commencing the construction of a new building for the Department of Chemistry. The other two projects are the planning of the new unit for the Indiana University Health Centre in Indianapolis which is to be a new building for the School of Dentistry, and the planning and supervision of a campaign to collect the amounts due to the Memorial Fund.

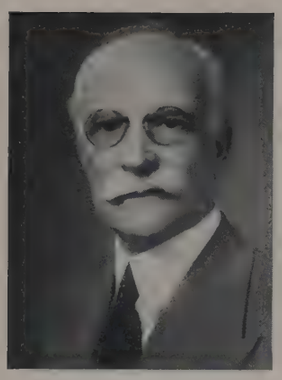

The board, with the aid of Dr. Robert E. Lyons, head of the Chemistry department, has planned a building for the use of the Chemistry department which will equal any similar building in the United States. After much consideration the plans of the new building were redrawn to allow for the addition of two wings, thus making it larger than had originally been planned.

Only the tentative plans for the new Dental School have as yet been drawn. This unit is to be the second of the new buildings to come from the $10,000,000 expansion plan created for the state universities and normal schools by the 1927 legislature.

In November the University started the first of its campaign to collect the amounts due the Memorial Fund. A student drive under the direction of Theodore R. Dann, PG, was conducted during the Thanksgiving vacation with great success. Since that time the campaign has been carried on under the direction of Mrs. Mary Brewer, '95. As soon as a sufficient fund is collected the trustees plan to erect the first unit of a building for the Indiana Union, the last of the University's projects to serve as memorial to those Indiana men and women who served in the great World War.

The Centennial

The centennial commencement exercises of Indiana University were held at twilight the afternoon of June 10, 1929. President William Lowe Bryan delivered the address to the graduating class of nearly one thousand.

Commencement

During the ceremonies a pageant was presented showing the march of culture from the ancients to the moderns. The first commencement was re-enacted with descendents of the first graduates taking their places.

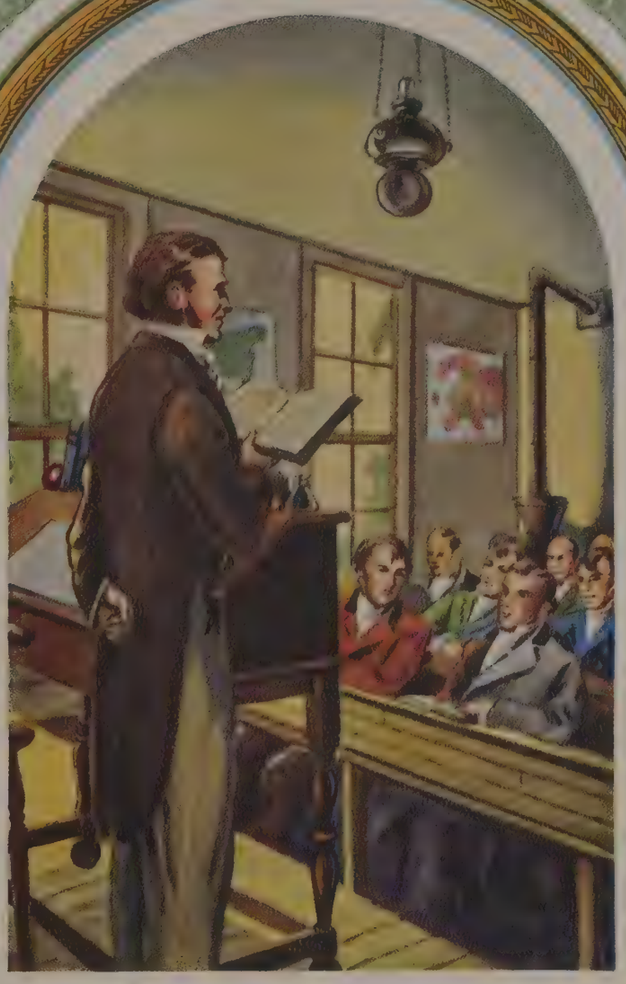

Dr. Andrew Wylie

EDUCATOR

The first president of Indiana College and of Indiana University, 1829-1851. During the administration of Dr. Wylie the school advanced from a college to a university, having had added the right to grant degrees in law and medicine.

As a classroom instructor he disciplined the minds and molded the characters of young men for useful service in the state. He helped, perhaps more than any other in his age, to make known to the citizens of the state the advantages of higher education.

General Lewis Wallace

1827-1905

SOLDIER and AUTHOR

American history offers few examples of public men who have become really eminent in so many distinct fields of endeavor as Lew Wallace. He was successfully a lawyer, an officer in the army, a United States minister to Turkey, and an author of international reputation.

After studying at Wabash College he returned to Crawfordsville, and there spent the rest of his life. Upon returning to the United States he engaged in literary work, which engaged all of his attention until his death. His best known novel is Ben Hur.

Intramural Athletics

Under the direction of Prof. George E. Schlafer the Intramural athletics of Indiana University have become an important phase of beneficial activity among men students. Thirteen sports, embracing practically every game that is possible for Intramural competition, are supervised by the department, starting in the early fall and continuing throughout the winter until the late spring.

Football, which was introduced in the fall of 1927, lasted two years of full-season competition and then was dropped in 1929 because of the danger of injury to players due to their poor physical condition. The sports now used in Intramural competition are speedball, volley ball, cross country, basketball, handball, swimming, wrestling, golf, horseshoes, tennis, playground ball, baseball and track. George Kistner is the senior manager in charge of Intramural athletics.

Football

A season of fighting the odds of a schedule that embraced three of the country's leading elevens marked the Scrappin' Hoosiers' 1929 attempt to gain the Western Conference football title. Handicapped at the start by the loss of nine veterans from the year before, including two great all-conference luminaries, Bennett and Randolph, Coach Page was faced with the problem of building a line made up, for the most part, of inexperienced men, and of using backfield men who were fast and clever but too light for the rigors of the strenuous competition that faced the Indiana team.

Four great football teams, three of them undefeated in seasonal play, visited Memorial Stadium during 1929. Purdue, Notre Dame and Ohio University were the teams with unmarred records and Colgate with one blemish by Wisconsin was the other. Thirteen lettermen, veterans of more than one season, completed their football eligibility at the end of the 1929 season.

INDIANA AGAINST THE LITTLE GIANTS

RASCHER

Indiana 19, Wabash 2

The Little Giants from Wabash were the first to test the strength of the Scrappin' Hoosiers in 1929 and they were sent home with a 19-2 defeat only after the Crimson backfield men had opened up with their scoring power and sent Todd crashing across the goal line twice and Brubaker caught a thirty-yard pass to step across the coveted marker. Straight football was employed throughout most of the game, and the veteran gridmen who had started the contest were replaced in the early stages of the tilt in order to give the new men a chance to prove their ability. A blocked punt behind the Indiana goal line enabled the Little Giants to score a safety for their only points of the game.

Notre Dame's Ramblers provided the Homecoming Day entertainment for Indiana, and their strong offense, led by the stellar Jack Elder, kept the Hoosiers on the defense throughout most of the struggle. Two thrusts by the Irish in the first quarter were repulsed when the Crimson defense tightened at critical moments. Elder broke away early in the second stanza, skirting the right end for a 23-yard run and the first score of the game. The Notre Dame sprint-star thrilled the fans again in the third quarter with a brilliant 59-yard run to score the other touchdown of the game. Features of the battle were the great defense presented by the Crimson with Balay, Indiana captain, outpunting Carideo and the driving strength of the Irish lead by Elder.

DUDDING

Coach Stagg's Maroons were the hosts to the Pagemen in the first game away from home, and the Crimson suffered a severe case of stage fright against a weaker Chicago team to suffer their first Conference loss, 13-7. Erratic play into which was interspersed some moments of machine-like and brilliant work on the part of the Hoosiers, led to their downfall. Golden opportunities to score in several parts of the game were thrown away by fumbles or mixed signals. The Chicago team, playing a much better brand of football than that which was expected of them, drove through Indiana for two touchdowns in the early stages of the game. Catterton, Indiana end, fell on a blocked punt for the Pagemen's only touchdown in a late rally that was cut short of the tying or winning markers by the final gun.

TRYING COLGATE'S END

Indiana 6, Colgate 21

Andy Kerr brought a strong squad of eastern football luminaries to Memorial stadium for the Boy Scout Day festivities and their highly-polished offensive proved the downfall of the Pagemen. The Colgate backs, Yablock, Hart and Dowler, were constant threats to the Crimson and their brilliant long runs led to scores by each of the speedy backs. The Crimson drive asserted itself only once during the game, coming late in the first half. With the Hoosier backs finding new life near the close of the second quarter, Todd and Ross slashed the Colgate tackles for steady gains, placing the ball on the visitors' 13-yard line. In a desperate effort to keep the gun from cheating them of a score, Balay tossed a pass to Brubaker for the Hoosiers' only touchdown.

With the advent of the famous No-Shave Club on the campus just a week before, the Hoosiers went into the Ohio State with the Indiana fans backing them to the limit. Playing inspired football at times during the struggle, the Pagemen held the upper hand throughout most of the game, and, besides providing a startling upset in Conference gridiron circles by holding the strong Buckeye contingent to a scoreless tie, they were conceded by football authorities to have been unfortunate in not annexing a victory. Balay's punting from danger when the Hoosier offense was pressed and the brilliant work of the entire team in crossing up the Ohio State pass attack were features of the game.

INDIANA FIGHTING MINNESOTA

Indiana 7, Minnesota 19

After their brilliant showing of the week before against Ohio State, the Pagemen traveled to Minneapolis to battle the Minnesota gridmen, and the Hoosiers suffered a relapse in football strength that led to another "in-and-out" affair somewhat similar to the Chicago nightmare. Bronko Nagurski slashed the Crimson line from the very start of the battle, and before the Hoosiers could awaken, the Gophers had slipped through for two touchdowns in the first quarter. Playing more promising football in the second and third stanzas, the Pagemen scored on a pass from Ross to Brubaker. Catterton converted for the extra point and then the Hoosiers suffered another relapse until the end of the struggle.

Continuing a jinx that has worked for the last three years, Indiana's Scrapping Hoosiers rose to the supreme heights of the season and provided the most startling upset of all Big Ten football in 1929 by knocking off the Northwestern warriors with a thrilling last-minute drive for a 19-14 victory. George Ross ripped the Wildcat line and sprinted his way into Indiana gridiron fame with a brilliant offensive performance that scored two touchdowns in the last eight minutes of the game and turned the tide into victory for the Pagemen. The stellar Crimson back flashed a 13-yard run and a brilliant 83-yard dash to score in the late minutes and place Indiana in the victory column of the Conference for the first time in 1929. Joe Scully made the other Indiana marker with a 20-yard run in the opening quarter.

In the final game of the season that proved to be the last battle in Crimson suits for thirteen scrapping Hoosier veterans, Purdue's undefeated Conference champions came to Memorial Stadium and flashed to an overwhelming but well-deserved 32-0 victory over the Pagemen. The Phelanmen played with the power of champions, and their machine-like drives smothered the Crimson defense and led to speedy dashes for scores by the powerful Boilermaker backs. Balay, Todd, Ringwalt, Garrison, Unger, Magnabosco, Hojnacki, McCracken, Dudding, Shields, Bennett, Crowe and Crawford were the Pagemen who ended their eligibility for Indiana football at the end of the 1929 season.

The First Day of Practice

The B Football Team

Indiana University's "B" football team, functioning for only the second season as a separate unit, gained the Conference second team championship in 1929 by virtue of an unmarred record among its Big Ten opponents. The honor, singular as it is, and a great achievement for any of the other Conference schools, speaks well for the spirit and co-operation that prevailed here, where the smallest number of men in the Big Ten report for football. Two "A" teams, Ohio University and Georgetown, defeated the Crimson reserves in the first two games, and then Coach Middlesworth's squad settled down to capture the scalps of the Iowa, Ohio State and Northwestern reserves, besides downing Ball Teachers' College in the only night game played during the season. Walter Jaros, a sophomore, was elected captain of the "B" team.

The Freshmen Squad

Freshman Football

The freshman squad, approximately seventy or eighty strong, worked out during the 1929 season under Coaches Otto Strohmeier and Paul Harrell to acquaint itself with the type of football tactics used by Coach Page and to prepare the first-year men for varsity berths in 1930. Shortly after the start of the season the squad was divided into two sections, with each coach taking charge. Opponents' plays were taught the rhinie gridders; the squads alternating weekly in using formations of opponents for the next game, and the varsity scrimmaged against the freshmen to familiarize themselves with the plays that would probably be used against them in the following game.

Pat Sends Mankoski In

Freshman Football

Realizing that most of the men entering here are not thoroughly schooled in the fundamentals of the game, the coaches drilled the rhinies every day in the rudiments of football. Dummy scrimmages played an important part in the daily workouts. The freshmen also are called out in the spring to play with the veteran varsity gridders, and the opportunity to work beside the second and third-year men has served to promote better co-operation and spirit in preparation for the strenuous fall campaign. The high light of the freshman season, in which no outside games are permitted to be played due to a Conference ruling, is the annual traditional Freshman-Sophomore battle after the regular fall season is over. Forty-eight numerals were awarded to rhinie football men for faithfulness to practice and ability in 1929.

Hard luck finished, long trips and ineligibility kept the Indiana hardwood machine from rising to a high throne in the season just completed. After it was all over the Hoosiers found themselves lodged in fourth place in the Western Conference with seven victories and five defeats chalked up to their record.

However, the coaching of Everett Dean sent one of the performers to the peak of all-conference honors—that of leading the conference individual scoring and setting a new all-time record. After three years of hard struggle Capt. Branch McCracken plowed his way through the Conference foes to score a total of 147 points to top all other players and to break the all-time record set last year by Murphy of Purdue. McCracken was one of the best pilots ever in charge of an Indiana basketball team, and was named on nearly every all-conference team. DePauw started off the Indiana season by winning 26 to 24 on a basket in the last few seconds of play. The following week Pittsburgh humbled the Dean machine by a 35 to 31 score. In the first game away from home hard luck continued to tag on the heels of Indiana, and Pennsylvania scored a 26 to 21 victory on the Quaker floor. Few fans will forget the nightcap when Notre Dame scored an under-basket shot just before the gun cracked to give Indiana another knockout blow on the local floor. This time the score was 30 to 29.

Indiana-Ohio State Game

With but four days to reorganize the team, Coach Dean outlined a strenuous practice program and as a result Indiana won its opening conference game from Chicago at the Maroon city 36 to 24. Finding out that they could win a game, the Crimson five entertained the Northwestern snipers and sent them back on the lame end of a 36 to 22 score. Following the game, Indiana left for Ann Arbor, where Michigan was met on Monday night. The game with the Purple and the long trip seemed to leave the Hoosiers lifeless, and they were severely trounced, the score being 45 to 26. The Wisconsin game here the same week was just another hard dose for Indiana to take. After leading the Badgers during a greater part of the contest the northern team triumphed in an overtime fray. This time the score was 23 to 21.

McCracken

Still smarting from these defeats the Deanmen journeyed to St. Louis, where they defeated Washington University by a score of 33 to 21. In the first conference game with Ohio State the Cream and Crimson found a tight defense laid out for them, but managed to come out on the long end of a 26 to 22 victory. The next game saw the team play at Northwestern, and for the second time turn back the Purple with little difficulty, 39 to 31. In the next home contest Chicago was defeated in a not overly exciting tilt.

Michigan continued to hold a jinx over Coach Dean's proteges and they dropped 21 to 18 on the Indiana field house after a hard game which saw an unheard of Wolverine forward sink the Crimson ship. In the next home contest the Buckeyes were turned back for the second time by a 27 to 15 score. The game was slow and did not provide many thrills for the audience. Minnesota, after bowing meekly to most of their conference opponents, put on a bold front when it came here on March 3rd, but was finally subdued 31 to 25, after one of the roughest games of the year. Capt. McCracken was fouled nearly every time he attempted to take a shot at the goal.

With a chance to land into second place in the conference scoring, Coach Dean pointed his players for the game at Wisconsin on March 8th. The Badgers rose to the occasion and maintained their berth by turning back Indiana for the second time during the season. The hardwood card was brought to a close on the following Monday night at Minnesota when Minnesota broke through the Indiana defense to score a victory.

This game saw the curtain lower on the college careers of Capt. McCracken, James Gill, James Strickland and Donald Cooper. Gill played during the latter part of the season at the back guard position while Strickland and Cooper alternated at one forward. Joseph Zeller, a sophomore, worked at the other forward berth for the greater part of the year. Claron Veller held down the floor guard position while B. Miller worked as substitute forward. Blagrave took care of the back guard work in the first part of the year. Jasper and Ashby took part in several contests.

Freshman Basketball

Indiana's freshman basketball squad had no outstanding high school stars to bolster the lineup, but it was well balanced in every department. Coach Wally Middlesworth was in charge of the squad and directed scrimmages with the varsity using the plays of the opposing teams.

After the varsity team had called the season quits, Coach Middlesworth retained the freshman team in order that he might drill them on the plays of Indiana so that it will be in condition for varsity competition next season. The team played in several curtain raisers with the reserve squad before the start of conference games.

Intramural Basketball

In one of the most closely contested battles that has been fought in several seasons, the Delta Chi net team fought its way to an Intramural basketball championship in 1929-30. Four strong quintets, as strong as have survived the league battles in several seasons, were matched in the championship series to determine the winner. Delta Chi eliminated Kappa Sigma and Sigma Nu put Acacia out of the way to narrow the field to the finals.

Sigma Nu, the defending champions, fell before the Delta Chi netters in the final game, 13-8. Thomas, Speer and V. Miller were the offensive threats of the I-M champions throughout the entire season, and their scoring power in the last battle carried their team over to the championship. Morris, Sigma Nu star, carried the brunt of the offense for the runners-up.

The Crimson baseball team, fighting under the severe handicap of a weakened pitching staff due to injuries and illness, loomed as a contender for the Conference championship during the early weeks of the 1929 season, only to drop at midseason time and finish with a Conference record of four victories and six defeats. Graduation in 1928 hit the squad heavily and sophomores drawn into the positions vacated by the veterans performed remarkably well.

Capt. Harrell for the third straight year led the Deanmen in all-around performance, amassing a batting average of .416, pilfering 8 bases and scoring 18 runs to lead the squad in all three divisions.

Returning from a five-game series with the University of Mississippi in the sunny South, the Deanmen paused at Ohio State long enough for Paugh to turn in his first Big Ten victory of the season, winning from the Buckeyes, 4-2. Wabash came next in early April for a spring training trip on Jordan field and the Cavemen dodged enough raindrops during the week to meet the Crimson in four games. Chase, Wabash pitcher, turned the Deanmen back, 2-0, and Mankowski, Bell and Paugh, working well despite the cold weather, turned in Indiana victories.

Ohio State came after the Wabash invasion and Paugh again let them down, this time with a score of 7-4. The next afternoon Chicago served as a stepping stone for the Crimson to take the undisputed lead in the Big Ten standing. George Lott, international tennis star, worked at shortstop for the Maroons and hit in very untennislike manner, despite the fact that Chicago lost, 5-3.

Paugh and Bell divided honors three days later in defeating DePauw at Greencastle, 8-3. Indiana struck the first Conference snag against Wisconsin when Farber, the Badgers' pitching ace, was stingy with hits and turned the Crimson team back, 5-1. The boys next visited Notre Dame and both teams proceeded to work off plenty of steam in a wild and woolly ball game that finally was ended because of rain with the score standing 5-5. Paugh and Bell worked for Indiana. DePauw was defeated, 9-7, in another wild game replete with errors and then the Hoosiers treked to Chicago, where the Maroons got revenge with a 4-2 victory.

A week later Indiana started a northern trip which would decide whether it captured the Big Ten championship. Minnesota spoiled any hopes of a Crimson championship by defeating Indiana on consecutive days, 9-7 and 13-8. Capt. Harrell was the star of the Crimson offense during the disaster, garnering seven hits, most of them for extra bases, out of eight times at bat.

Farber mystified the Hoosiers in a most workmanlike manner when Indiana visited Wisconsin two days later. Farber was even stingier with hits than he had been on Jordan field and he led the Badgers in a shutout, 11-0.

With barely a rest after the slaughter of the northern trip, Indiana crossed with Purdue at Lafayette in the premier thriller of the entire season. Paugh and McReynolds battled on even terms throughout the first part of the game and, with both teams scoreless in the ninth inning, Jaros, Crimson secondbaseman, with superb fielding, saved the game and enabled the Hoosiers to get into the tenth inning, where they scored five runs to the Boilermakers' one.

Iowa closed the season on Jordan field when Brown shut the Indiana team out, 5-0, and sent the Crimson Conference percentage down to .400 for the season.

Freshmen Baseball

Coach Wally Middlesworth's freshman baseball squad each year is used primarily as a training ground for future varsity timber. Drills consist mostly of tutoring in the fundamentals of the game in order that the rhinies will be acquainted with the style of baseball used by Coach Dean.

Practice games are used every day, either among themselves or with the varsity, to bring out the defects in the individual players that need to be improved upon. Individual hitting and fielding averages of each player are kept and used as a basis for awarding numeral sweaters at the end of the season. Freshman baseball at Indiana University has proven itself valuable by training many inexperienced baseball players and sending them into their sophomore year as good varsity material.

Speedball, a new game originated within the last few years and which has been taken into most of the universities and colleges as an intramural sport with much popularity, has gained headway in Indiana university to such an extent that the league games and titular contests are some of the most hotly contested of any in the Intramural program.

Lambda Chi Alpha won the championship crown in 1929 by successfully defeating all opponents in the league play and then trouncing Kappa Sigma and Phi Kappa Psi in the interleague championship contests. Delta Tau Delta was the other league winner, being defeated in the final series by Phi Kappa Psi.

The deciding game of the speedball championships, played late in November amid snow flurries and in near-freezing temperature, was one of the most closely contested of the year, the Lambda Chi's finally winning out in the battle, 2-0.

Some of the outstanding events of the year were the winning of the Georgia Tech relays, copping first place in the state meet, and taking thirteenth position in the national intercollegiate meet.

For individual honors it would be safe to nominate Robert Todd, who Indiana's championship cross country team brought to a close in 1929 one of the most successful seasons in history. A record that was not marred by a defeat, and one which included the Western Conference title for the second consecutive year and the Kentucky A. A. U. championship has been placed in the University's annals to the credit of the victorious Hayes-coached sextette.

Competing against some of the strongest harrier teams in the country, Coach Hayes' squad had little trouble in disposing of its opponents in each meet. Butler, Purdue, Notre Dame, Northwestern and Ohio State were turned back in order during the regularly scheduled season, with

The final achievement of the champions was the annexing of the A. A. U. title at Louisville when five Indiana men crossed the finish line in the first ten. Clapham, Crimson veteran, took first place for the individual honor of the meet. Shafer, Kemp, Little and Hunter were the other scorers for the Crimson, finishing in sixth, seventh, ninth and tenth places, respectively.

Practically the only difference between the Law-Medic football game of 1929 and those of the two previous years was the personnel of the squads, the weather and the field on which the game was played. The score has been the same, 0-0, for those three straight years. The rolling plains of the golf course handed out the bruises for the laws and medics last fall instead of the traditional Jordan field, and the day was clear instead of the usual rains that accompany memorable Law-Medic struggles.

Athletics occupy a well established place in the curriculum of the women students of Indiana University. Early in the school year the interest and enthusiasm of the freshmen and new women are secured by the annual W. A. A. "get-acquainted" banquet.

The department of physical education for women wishes to foster the intelligent and worthy use of leisure time and both to create and to fulfill the desire for wholesome recreation. Each season of the year is planned and an appropriate sport, or group of sports, selected. The fall term opens with hockey, soccer, archery, tennis, volley ball, natural dancing, and restricted. Teams in hockey, soccer and archery are selected by the W. A. A. sports head and the instructors in charge, after the participants have acquired skill and knowledge of the rules. In the interclass tournaments, the juniors were the hockey champions, while in soccer the highest award went to the sophomores.

Upon returning from the Thanksgiving vacation, the athletic coed turns her ambitions toward other endeavors in the way of sports, mainly basketball and swimming. Other activities beside the fall ones are clogging, folk dancing, and required practice. Competition in basketball is always keen among the individual members of classes and also between organizations in the intramural tournaments held at the end of the seasons for each sport. During the winter season tests in folk dancing, swimming and clogging are given.

Debating for Women

The annual coed triangular debate between Michigan, Ohio and Indiana was held in December. Prof. Lee R. Norvelle, director of debating and dramatics, and the coed team went by aeroplane to Columbus, Ohio, for this debate. This is the first time that an Indiana team of any kind has gone to a contest by air.

Women's Debating Squad
First row: Creigmile, Whittington, Williams.
Second row: Kivett, Goyer.

Intramural Debating

A great deal of interest was shown again this year in intramural debating. Each team consisted of two persons; the men and women each debating in their own leagues. The question discussed this year was: "Resolved, That no person should be allowed to pledge membership in any social organization until he (or she) had received thirty hours of general credit at this university."

The Neizer trophies for intramural debating were won this year by Alpha Chi Omega and Delta Chi. The members of the two teams were Marthalou Gray, Vivian Mulholland, Alex Campbell and Paul DeVault. Bernard Frick, '31, was director of intramural debating.

Freshmen debating, inaugurated two years ago, was continued this year. The outstanding event was their dual meet with the freshmen of DePauw.

Dramatics

Under Prof. Lee R. Norvelle, director of dramatics and debating, dramatics has assumed a much more important place at Indiana University. Six full length plays were presented during the year, with Mr. Norvelle and Miss Dee Thompson as coaches. Most of the plays were more difficult than the average undertaken by amateur players.

The outstanding event in dramatics during the school year 1929-1930 was the appearance of Mr. Otis Skinner as a part of the Activities Series in May.

The Brat

The Brat, a comedy in three acts, by Maud Fulton, was the outstanding play given by the university players during the late spring of the 1928-1929 season. It was presented April 17 and 18 and was repeated as the 1929 Commencement play. The leads were taken by Joyce Armstrong, John Palm and Leonard Scott.

The Brat

The Mollusc

The Mollusc, a comedy in three acts by Henry Hubert Davies, was presented July 18 as a feature of the 1929 summer school session. It was given by the university players under the direction of Prof. Lee Norvelle and Miss Dee Thompson. Muriel Mattox and Leonard Scott were cast in the leading roles. Joyce Armstrong and Maurice Radcliffe also had parts in the cast.

THE MOLLUSC

David Garrick

"David Garrick," the most difficult play attempted by members of the Garrick club in three years, was presented in the late spring on the nights of May 22 and 23. The play is based on incidents in the life of David Garrick. The characters of Squire Chivey, Ada Igot and David Garrick were played by Gerald Albright, Alice Thorn and Otis McQuiston, respectively. The play was produced under the direction of Bagadascar Deranian.

THE CIRCLE

The Circle

The Circle, by Somerset Maugham, was the most favorably received of all the plays presented during the 1929-1930 season. It was coached by Prof. Lee Norvelle with the assistance of Dee Thompson. The leading roles were played by Mrs. Lee Norvelle, John Palm, Dee Thompson and Leonard Scott.

Daisy Mayme

Daisy Mayme was presented by the university players on October 22 and 23 under the direction of Prof. Lee Norvelle. It is a comedy in three acts by George Kelly. Joyce Armstrong played the role of Daisy Mayme, supported by Leonard Scott, John Palm, Katherine Louden, Muriel Mattox, Alice Thorn and Hugh Behymer.

The Escape

The Escape

The Escape, a tragedy written by John Galsworthy, with a prologue and nine episodes, was one of the most difficult plays ever presented by a cast of university players. It was given February 25 and 27, with Robert Masters playing the role of the convict, supported by a large cast.

The College Widow

The College Widow was produced on November 21 and 22, the nights preceding the annual Purdue-Indiana football game, because it is a football story, and was written by a Purdue author, George Ade, and presented by an Indiana cast. The part of the widow was played by Muriel Mattox. Other characters in the play were portrayed by Leonard Scott, John Palm and Alice Thorn.

POET

This outstanding Hoosier poet was born at Greenfield October 7, 1853. Early in life he moved to Indianapolis and there spent the rest of his life, dying there July 22, 1916.

During his youth he tried many trades, among which are sign painter, actor, musician, printer, editor, and writer. He had his greatest success in composing poems about his own Indiana people, many of them being in the dialect peculiar to the state. His first books were published by Bobbs-Merrill of Indianapolis, and they remained his publisher throughout his life.

Studebaker Brothers
INDUSTRIAL LEADERS

The first firm of the Studebaker brothers was formed in 1852. Their wagons early became famous among the western immigrants. During the Civil War their products became nationally known because of the products they furnished the northern armies. And the reputation of the firm became international during the Boer War. The corporation entered the automobile field in 1904.

Clem Studebaker, who was president of the company for 33 years, was a public-spirited, high-minded man of democratic disposition, honored at home and abroad.

Albert J. Beveridge

1862-1927

AUTHOR and STATESMAN

After graduating from DePauw with the class of 1885, Mr. Beveridge took up the practice of law in Indianapolis. Upon entering public life he won an enviable reputation as an orator. Mr. Beveridge was sent to the Senate from Indiana in 1899.

The first act of Mr. Beveridge as a senator was to make a thorough study of the policy of the administration in the Philippines. To the Agricultural Act of 1906 he was instrumental in adding the amendment providing for the inspection of packed meats. He will be remembered longest, perhaps, for his Life of John Marshall.

Dr. C. P. Emerson
Dean

School of Medicine

Dr. Charles P. Emerson became dean of Indiana University School of Medicine in 1911, coming here from Johns Hopkins University, where he was professor of medicine. Under his guidance the school has progressed rapidly and has become one of the leading medical schools of the country, being classified as a "Class A" school by the American Medical association. Dr. Emerson is one of the leading internists of the country, author of several medical books and an inspiring teacher. To him belongs a major share of the credit for Indiana University's high standing in the medical world.

Dr. E. T. Thompson
Administrator

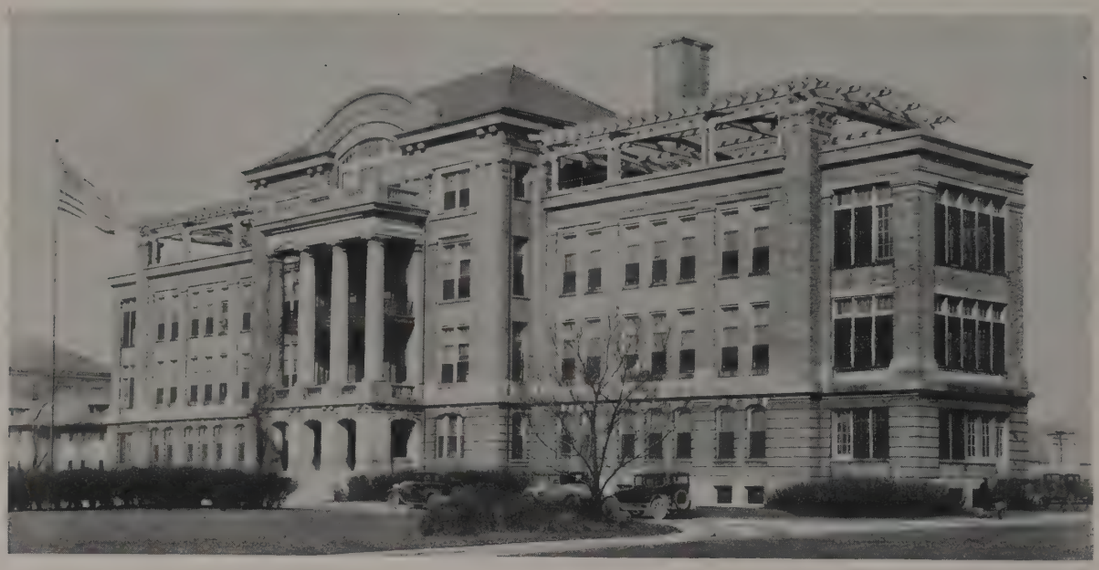

Indiana University Medical Center

A series of consolidations brought about the present School of Medicine at Indianapolis. The original Indiana University school was founded in Bloomington in 1903. Subsequently it joined with the State College of Physicians and Surgeons of Indianapolis and the Indiana Medical College, itself a combination of colleges. Thus the Medical School maintains a campus of its own in Indianapolis.

The Indiana University hospital group is composed of the Robert Long Hospital, the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children and the Coleman Hospital for Women. The capacity of the group consists of approximately 450 beds, which, in large part, are available for state charity cases. These hospitals are utilized as teaching hospitals and afford opportunity for invaluable practical work to the students. In addition, the University works in close harmony with the Indianapolis City Hospital, affording the students opportunity to study large numbers of cases in the out-patient department and on the hospital wards.

The most recent addition to the group is the Kiwanis addition to the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital. This wing, made possible through the generosity of seventy-four Kiwanis Clubs of the state, contributing $150,000, and through special gifts made by Mrs. Myrtle L. Semans and Mrs. Alice W. McCullock, was dedicated on January 7, 1930. The wing is constructed to care for approximately fifty patients, and has all the very latest features of modern hospital construction. In this new wing is located a laboratory maintained for the purpose of research in children's diseases. This laboratory contains the finest of equipment and its establishment may well be regarded as a progressive step.

Dr. E. T. Thompson, administrator, presides over the business affairs of the Medical Center. He is assisted in his work, which includes the business management of the various hospitals, the purchasing of supplies, management of help and admission of patients, by Mr. Edward Rowlands, assistant administrator.

THE SURGERY IN ROBERT LONG HOSPITAL

Senior Class

Classes

The medical curriculum includes two years of pre-medic work and four years in the School of Medicine. The two years of pre-medic work and the first year of medicine are given at Bloomington. The courses at Bloomington include physiology, anatomy, histology and neurology. The last three years of medicine, given in Indianapolis, consist largely of clinical and hospital work. The four classes number approximately one hundred each, and while most of the students are residents of Indiana, several other states are represented in this number. The class officers are as follows: Senior, Russell Sanders, president; Joseph Skobba, vice-president; John Lansford, treasurer; W. G. Pippenger, secretary.

Juniors, John Parker, president; William Nichol, vice-president; Carl Barker, secretary and treasurer. Sophomore, C. R. Fisher, president; H. C Coggshall, vice-president; Mary Kellar, secretary; M. E. Frantz, treasurer.

The faculty is made up of professors who give their time entirely to the University and physicians who give a part of their time to teaching. These men enjoy excellent professional reputations, and are regarded as masters of the subjects in which they instruct.

The hospital staffs are composed of competent physicians and surgeons, who co-operate fully with the instructors in the school to make the course in medicine a well-balanced and practical course.

Lillian Russell

In Memoriam

Lillian Russell, age 23 years, died in the Nurses' Infirmary of epidemic meningitis January 20, 1930, after an illness of three days.

Miss Russell graduated from Sullivan High School, spent one year at DePauw University, matriculated in I. U. School for Nurses September, 1928. She was a Junior at the time of her death.

THE HOME

Ball Brothers Nurses' Home

One of the recent units added to the Indiana University hospital group is the Ball Brothers Nurses' Home, which was completed in the fall of 1928.

The erection of this unit was made possible through a gift of $500,000 by the Ball brothers of Muncie. It is modern in every respect and provides accommodations for 165 nurses. Class rooms, laboratories and instructors' offices are included in the building, as well as a gymnasium and recreation room on the fourth floor. On every floor of each wing there is a sitting room, a kitchenette and a laundry.

DRAWING ROOM OF THE BALL NURSES' HOME

Senior Nurses

Nurses' Training School

The Nurses' Training School is associated with the School of Medicine and offers a three-year course leading to an R. N. degree. Mrs. Ethyl P. Clark is director of the school and is assisted in this work by Miss Ann Gosman.

The course of study includes instruction and laboratory work given by various instructors of the medical school staff. Practice nursing is done in the Coleman, Riley and Long Hospitals, all parts of the medical group, thus giving the student nurses opportunity for practical experience in many different types of cases.

Junior Nurses

PRE-NURSES

The school maintains a publication known as the Bulletin. This is published quarterly and contains news of activities and happenings upon the campus of interest to students and alumnæ.

The recent addition of the Ball Brothers Nurses' Home, providing much needed room and quarters and giving opportunity for expansion, has given Indiana University a training school which compares favorably with any in the United States.

School of Dentistry

The School of Dentistry located at Indianapolis is not far from the Medical Center of the University. It was organized as the Indiana Dental College in 1879 and operated as a private institution until June 1, 1925, when, by an act of the Indiana Legislature, it became part of the University, known as Indiana University School of Dentistry.

Since 1879 it has graduated nearly 3,000 students with the degree D. D. S. who are successfully practicing dentistry in all parts of the United States and every civilized country in the world.

Clinical Staff

Dr. K. H. Kayser
General Superintendent

Dr. J. L. Wilson
Superintendent of Infirmary

The Dental Educational Council of America has rated the Dental School as a Class A institution, which is the highest possible rating to be obtained. With the large number of patients afforded by a city the size of Indianapolis, dental students have the opportunity of unlimited demonstrations and practical clinical experience in all branches of Dentistry.

The Dental School, with its close connection with the Robert Long, James Whitcomb Riley, Coleman and Indianapolis City Hospitals, affords the dental students opportunity of witnessing many major and minor operations under hospital procedure.

In the campus shown above are to be seen the various units of the University Health Center. They are the Medical School, Robert W. Long Hospital, James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children, Coleman Maternity Hospital, Nurses' Home and School for Nurses' Training.

The Trustees of Indiana University have decreed that the next new building for the Indianapolis Division shall be a new Dental School, to be erected in the Health Center Campus as soon as the necessary funds are accumulated from the present special building appropriation.

Seniors

The senior class of 1930 is probably one of the smallest ever graduated from the school. This by no means infers any inferiority in their ability as dentists. On the contrary it denotes superior qualities, due to the added experience which has been their good fortune to obtain with the few they have in the class. This class is the first to graduate under the five-year requirement.

Juniors

Great bunch of boys, aren't they? Of course they are. We think so at least. The two big extra-curricular tasks which have confronted them this year have been the staging of a "bigger and better Junior Prom," as the saying goes, and the promoting of a basket ball team.

The boys are getting added clinical experience this year by bearing the overflow of patients which the few Seniors have been unable to handle. We hope to be able to fill senior places next year.

Sophomores

Thirty-five men now compose the class of 1932. According to the members of the class, the faculty is keeping them plenty busy this year; and if the reports are true, they are turning out some very fine laboratory work. If they continue, they will certainly be efficient operators next year when they start their work in the clinic.

They have entrusted the executive powers of the class to the hands of Smithson, president; Iler, vice-president, and Grupe, secretary-treasurer.

Freshmen

Another class of future dentists has started up the road to acquire the knowledge necessary to obtain the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery. They seem to think that in three years hence there will be a powerful group of dentists graduated from the school.

So far they have fared well and have held up under the strain of study and activities connected with the course. In November they staged the annual Freshman dance, which proved to be very successful.

Out of the few organizations in the school of dentistry we have one that is outstanding. It is the organization of Masons known by the name of the Sojourners Club. Having something in common, they bond themselves together with a fraternal feeling.

Orthodontia Department

The subject of orthodontia, which embraces a study of malpositions of the teeth and malformations of the face, has gained a great deal of popularity in dentistry in recent years. On the assumption that a student in a specialized branch such as this can learn more from what he sees than from what he hears, the professor of this department teaches in the class room by means of models, casts, etc.

After a thorough foundation in the fundamentals, the students are taken in groups into the orthodontia clinic.

Department of Crown and Bridge Work

The modern practice of crown and bridge work is taking an important place in the restoration of missing teeth. When properly constructed along certain basic fundamentals, crowns and bridges are sanitary, will restore the function of mastication and not be unsightly in the patient's mouth.

Under skillful and efficient instructors, these basic fundamentals are given the student in three years of lecture and laboratory work, supplemented by practical training in the crown and bridge infirmary.

Exodontia and Anesthesia

This department, which serves about 10,000 patients each year, provides splendid clinical material for developing technique in extraction, anesthesia and sterilization.

Junior and Senior students spend a prescribed number of days in this department. The problems confronting the dentist in extraction work are stressed and demonstrated by a staff of competent instructors. Local and general anesthetics are studied and given. Particular stress is laid upon sterilization.

Prosthetics

The Prosthetics Department has experienced a very busy year despite the fact that the Senior and Junior classes were much smaller than in previous years. A number of difficult and unusual cases have been constructed with a large measure of success. We feel that the added experience in actual practice, made possible by smaller classes, will be of great benefit to this year's Junior and Senior classes.

This department will be represented by a group of senior students under the direction of Dr. Frank C. Hughes in the student clinic, to be given at the annual meeting of the I. D. A. in May.

Oral Surgery

Oral Surgical demonstrations are held weekly, and it is the object of the clinical oral surgical staff to practically demonstrate the more complex operations in the mouth such as removal of impacted teeth, oral tumors, exsection of necrosed bone, opening and treatment of the antrum intra-orally. Uses of general anesthesia, their indications, and contra-indications, ligation of arteries, surgical control of hemorrhage, suturing, dressing and bandaging wounds, etc.

All these things are practically demonstrated, after which the students are taken into the classroom and quizzed thoroughly.

Nutrition

The nutrition department is a comparatively new department and was established for the purpose of researching on dental problems such as controlling decay, erosion, pyorrhea gingivitis, etc.

At present this department is engaged in an extensive study on the prevention, arrest and control of dental decay by nutritional management.

Senior students are given individual instruction in the manipulation of the apparatus in dark room procedure and particularly in the interpretation of dental radiographs.

The Home of Paramount Pictures

EVEN Sarah Bernhardt, who threatened to sue a hotel because an uninviting bathroom spoiled her day and her evening performance, would have been charmed by the beauty of this typical Crane room. Even the most frugal will be delighted by the economy with which this beauty is here offered to American home builders. The Corwith bath with overhead shower, the Norwich lavatory, the Santon closet, all new fixtures full of character, cost no more than old-fashioned clumsy ones. The delicate India ivory hue in the fixtures adds only a fraction to the complete cost of a bathroom. The decorations . . . linoleum for the floor, canvased wainscot, papered walls . . . actually can be had for less than a stereotyped room. For a book of twelve such beautiful rooms, one of which may exactly fit your taste, purse, and house, write for Bathrooms for Out-of-the-Ordinary Homes, with color schemes, floor plans, full information. Your architect and a responsible plumbing contractor will help plan and make the installation.

A Growing Business, Offering Opportunities to the Right Kind of Men

NOTE the increasing use of Indiana Limestone in the newer buildings of our large cities. There has been a tremendous swing to stone in the last few years. This is but the beginning. So great are the advantages of this beautiful natural material from the quarries near you, that the stone business is bound to become more interesting and more attractive in the future.

Already in quarry, mill, drafting room, sales office, architect's office, etc., there are opportunities for able and ambitious men. If the stone business looks to you like a "coming" field, give thought to whether you have something to contribute to it. Every industry needs good people, and the stone industry is no exception. While you are in the vicinity you have an unusual opportunity to study this field and judge for yourself what possibilities it offers.

Indiana Limestone Company was formed in 1926. It is a consolidation of 24 properties in the Bedford-Bloomington district. With assets exceeding $46,000,000, and sales offices in principal cities, this Company is producing Indiana Limestone in accordance with the most modern methods, and is promoting its use on a nation-wide scale through aggressive advertising.

SEPTEMBER AND OCTOBER

Pongo Smith opens up school, notebook in hand, prepared for a course in statistics—seventy-two days until the first vacation, only 100 more in which to finish the Christmas shopping and just 264 till June and he can go back to the ranch and Little Nell.

By spilling the gravy bowl, Dot Gant ruins the Kappa's chances on the froshberg from Chicago—resolves to donate one-half dozen said articles with better attachments to the house when she gets to be rich, famous and a teacher.

Thetas entertain said froshberg; Pi Phis sit at her feet; but she pledges Delta Gamma because they have butter knives which makes a big hit.

People who call the Beta and Phi Delt houses notice and remark about the change from manly sophomore voices on the wire to the squeaks of the freshmen.

FREQUENT use of the x-ray is one of the ways by which the public is learning to distinguish the progressive dentist. More and more the leaders in the profession are installing their own x-ray units.

The Victor CDX Dental X-Ray Unit has been a great factor in creating this vogue for individual ownership. The Victor CDX hangs suspended from the wall. It is electrically safe. Both transformer and tube, insulated in oil, are enclosed in the tube head. There is no high tension current exposed anywhere. You and your patient can touch the CDX anywhere while it is in operation. There is no danger of shock.

Nine hundred sixty-three students have eight o'clocks. Nine hundred sixty-two students got there on time today—George Bligh is the oustanding ed who arrived flushed but minus his overcoat and his first resolution before the departing bell sounded.

Stan Cooper forgot himself to the extent of giving the first person who saluted him as an Eagle Scout "always prepared" a black eye—that the first person happened to be his aged room-mate and the A. T. O. prexy is of no consequence.

Also Jordan River was a fine thing this year, but it toots it own noise.

Since Indiana's bathing beauty is Miss Phi Mu, we suppose they will agitate against closing up the quarries yet this year.

McKinney's did its best to put the Prom in the limelight this year by way of co-operation and sech, but the week-end just wasn't large enough because Jim Beatty, "Indiana's first Prom king—the ladies choice," held the center of the stage on Saturday, the big night.

Meeting The Problem Of Service

THE TASK of furnishing an adequate supply of electrical energy and manufactured gas to Bloomington, its homes and industries, is one that demands constant planning, building and looking ahead on the part of the utility operators.

In the past few years the Interstate Public Service Company has made a total of 60,000 horsepower available to the limestone quarries and mills in the Bloomington district, and the city's other industries. All but a few of the quarries are now operated by electricity. A series of interconnections with power sources has made an almost unlimited supply of current available to the city.

Last fall Bloomington was connected with a gas pipe line from Terre Haute by way of Martinsville. The new pipe line assures Bloomington of an unlimited supply of gas both now and for the future.

Interstate has broadened the scope of its services in home and public building until today they play a vital part in the life and health of the community.

MAY AND JUNE

And the Kappa call girl said, "Say Rabbit," and the Kappas did. Then everybody made a wish and maybe next year there won't be any dandelions in the front yard.

Too, there was a nice Pleiades initation when everybody threw eggs and things, but that was back in the day of Martha Coombs and Mary Pattee.

Betas are just now recovering from the Phi Gam dog dinner. Doc Keeney seems to have changed since last year. Anyway we never would have guessed him such a little devil.

Martha Pittenger can't decide whether to write another term paper or go to Summer School so she decides to compromise on a game of bridge.

June seniors are all in tears in spite of those graduation gifts; farewell banquets turn out all wet.

Rush captains grind their teeth and fold hands over peculiar rushees down for the spring dances. With heart felt prayers for the new freshmen class, the semester ends.

THIS ANNUAL ENGRAVED BY JAHN & OLLIER

JOHN CALVIN MELLETT
INDIANAPOLIS
Bell Avenue at the Canal
March 17, 1930

Max M. Sappenfield,
Editor, The Arbutus.
Indiana University,
Bloomington, Ind.

Dear Mr. Sappenfield:

Lower away. My head is firmly in the noose, and you can drop me overboard any minute, to suit yourself. Even if I could swim, which I can't, my drowning will be quick and painless in the waves of resentment, contempt and anguish rolled over me by the relatives and friends of the girls in the Arbutus beauty contest,—girls not rated first, or at any rate, at least, second or third. But I agreed, in a moment of weakness, and now walk the plank to keep my word. My last words are these: I rated the girl numbered one, first; the girl numbered two, second, the girl numbered three, third, and so forth. Up to six. That's settled, until poor Don Herold enters or ascends the bench, and does some judging in his turn. Now then,—how did I do it?

First of all, let me explain this judgment of beauty. Beauty is a personal matter, like fondness for broccoli or red neckties. It lies in the beholder's eye. My eye is blue, squints slightly, and rests between red hair, a pug nose and a big chin, and retiring ears. It is an old eye, that has beheld much beauty and more ugliness, but given more to resting on printed lines or typewritten copy than upon girlish personality. This eye rates the six chosen girls ahead of the others in the contest, and rates the six in the order named.

So far, so good,—the eye is explained, somewhat.

Now for the beauties,—and beauty. Regularity of feature, bone structure, possible brilliance, spirit, alertness in mental responsiveness to the world this beauty encounters, and keenness in sympathetic reaction to that same world,—all these I considered. You didn't say you wanted me to pick out the six merely prettiest girls. Beauty is a larger order, and covers a multitude of things. I analyzed these things as they appeal to me, and appealed to me in the lovely photographs. The result is what? That at the precise fraction of a second in which each of these attractive girls faced the camera, these six girls registered highest with me. In the next fraction of a second, some other six might outrank them, depending on the next expression in their eyes. Suppose I could confront them with a smart crack, like "Lovely weather, isn't it?" or "Isn't this music the berries?" Reactions betokening livelier spirit or kindlier sympathy might kindle in some other eyes than those I've chosen, might dull the beauty in expressions of the present winners.

A photographic contest is a poor measure, on the basis of permanence, although it does enable one to say that at the moment the pictures were taken this one or that is the finest beauty. Now, if I could be on the campus again, and see and know these girls, in rainy weather, or at eight o'clock classes, maybe I could say with some better degree of assurance,—but forbid that! It would not be safe for one even as old as I am to find his path in ways so beset with beauty as the campus paths must be nowadays.

At the risk of alienating any possible affections on the part of all the girls in the contest, I must say one word more. It seems to me that the most striking characteristic of the whole group, aside from mere physical attractiveness, is the impression of fine, lively intelligence that these photographs convey. That's a terrible thing to say to a group of strikingly pretty girls, but it really won't hurt them. Brains and sympathy won't hurt even girls as pretty as these are,—all of them.

Even if I suffer no more dire personal penalty for this judgment than the refusal of contestants or their families to buy and read my books,—if nobody shoots me or puts poison in my coffee, I'll be obliged to you for inviting me to serve as a judge. The experience has taught me something. I now understand how you senior men, after your four years or six or whatever it takes you these days to become seniors, are so blase. I used to worry and wonder about that, but now I understand. Freshmen, sophomores, juniors,—always with such beauty and beauties on all sides,—

Very truly yours,

John C Mellett

Don Herold

810 S. Lucerne Blvd.,
Los Angeles.
March 29, 1930.

Dear Mr. Sappenfield:

I have been bragging blatantly about my sense of humor all my life, and here you have me acting as judge in a beauty contest.

I put my numbers in red on the gals' backs.

How does I go about it, you ask?

Well, I suppose the sensible way would be to throw all of them up to the ceiling, and the first one down is the winner.

I'll confess my first impulse was to call Mrs. Herold and say, "Which of these girls do you think is prettiest?" Thus does one's beauty judging fibre deteriorate after a few years of matrimony.

But, instead, I decided to face these girls like a man, and decide for myself. And I have decided—made a friend of one girl whose name I don't even know, and enemies of all the rest of the girls in Indiana University—all of whom know my name. Is that fair? But I'll say in justice to the other girls that maybe it was just a fortunate photo of the winner that did the trick. Maybe the light and the exposure and all were accidentally just perfect in her picture. Maybe that will let me out with some of the others.

As one grows older, his ideas of beauties change. In judging girls now, I find myself asking myself: how would she treat a guy (and Lord knows we need a lot of gentle and generous treatment, hounds that we all are at times); how hard would she gouge for alimony; would I, if I married her, believe in her at times when I didn't believe much in anything else; is she substantially animated, or falsely animated; or sluggish; is she a good sport, etc.?

In discussing the matter with Mrs. Herold, she scoffed at the idea of my trying it at all. "Look what you picked!" she said.

Sincerely,

Don Herold
